Fishical characteristics of active ingredient pharmaceutical-APL or pharmacological compounds) Dosing or drug forms, and the itinerary Use is a determining factor of the in vivo performance, the safety and efficacy of drug products. The properties of drugs and their dosing forms are designed and carefully tested to produce the desired therapeutic response in patients. Pharmacecic pharmacists and scientists must understand this complex relationship to understand the right use and development of pharmacies. To explain the importance of pharmacological compounds and drug formulations on absorption and distribution of drugs to the medication action site, the order of events that precede a drug therapy effect must be considered. First, the drug in the form of its preparation is used by patients both through an oral, intravenous, subcutaneous, transdermal and others. Furthermore, the drug is released from the dosing form so can be treated and
