Lisa Vollrath is a prolific mixed media artist whose work includes altered books, art magazines, collage, gluebooks and paper crafts. Oval folding iris design in one of my altered books. Lisa Vollrath What is Iris folding? Folding Iris is a simple folding paper technique that originated in Holland. Colour-coordinated strips of folded paper are stuck in place on a pattern, creating a spiral design that resembles the iris of an eye or camera. Originally, Dutch artisans would cut their strips of envelopes with printed interiors, but now it is common to use lightweight papers, such as wrapping paper and origami, to create designable Iris designs. Folding Iris by Lisa Vollrath the following sections, covering basic materials, steps, and tips, are from my book, Folding Iris: Spiral Folding for Paper Art. Folding designs of the fastest materials require the following items: lightweight papers to fold permanent transparent tape, a ruler or trimmer paper scissors a working table or a table to mount your Pattern and opening removable masking tape or editing editing tape of lightweight paper for lightweight papers? Here are some ideas on what to use, and where to find them: origami paper comes in a variety of patterns and colors, and is an ideal weight for folding the iris. You will find it in many craft shops in the children's crafts section. Seal on regular link paper. I like to use text background stamps, or small images of rubber stamp stamp stamped repeatedly. The gift wrap is often the right weight for Iris folding, so it saves its remains when shipping presents. The pages of the magazine make large folding papers of Iris. Look for large areas of solid color or repetitive pattern. Decorative magazines are good for both. Check the inside of your of Bill. Some companies use a pattern within the envelope to protect their privacy, and those can be used as folding roles. Instructive Folding Basics comats All IRIS folding patterns can be executed using these same basic basics or copy the pattern you want to use. Cut the pattern around the outer edge. Place the pattern where you want on a piece of cardboard and crawl around the outer edge. Create an opening in the cardboard by cutting the traced shape with a sharp craft knife. This will be your opening or frame. Turn the cardboard. You will be working on the wrong side of the cardstock to create your design. Place the pattern in the opening and lightly record the pattern and the cardboard to your work table with removable tape. Using a paper trimmer, cut the printed paper into strips, a little more than twice as wide as the largest section of your pattern. Fold the strips in the middle longitudinally, creating strips with a folded edge. Place the strips in piles, one pile for each paper design. Assign each pile a card that matches its pattern: A, B, C, etc. TIP: To create an attractive pattern, you can alternate light and dark designs, or arrange your paper designs from the lightest to the darkest. Start working your pattern with section 1A. Place the folded edge of paper A against the line 1A closest to the edge of the opening, completely covering section 1A. Cover the strip in place with permanent tape and trim any excess length away. Now, pick up the strip of B paper, and record it in section 2. Next, use C paper to cover section 3. Continue to follow the pattern, working your way, one paper at a time, covering each section numbered in order. It is very important to follow their numbers and cards. The design won't look very nice from behind, but it's okay. It'll look lovely from the front. Resist the temptation to pick up the piece and look towards the front side, because it is often difficult for beginners to realign their pattern once it has moved. When all sections have been covered with strips of paper, your design is almost complete. Gently pull back the cardstock from the work table and turn it over for his iris, with adowntown. This opening can be filled with apper or a photo. Just record in place from the back side of the design. Often, you will want to cover the back side of your iris folded design, both to protect it and to hide all the tape and overwhelmed edges. For cards, it is easier to work the design in a flat piece of cardboard and then cut it to create a card front. Apply this to an appropriate size card. For other articles, simply cover the back side of the finished design with a piece of paper or Iris cardboard folding in an altered book, by Lisa Vollrath Basic Iris folding the patterns of how-to " These links will lead you to iris folding instructions and patterns. If you know of other free iris folding patterns online, please post a link with them and I will take a look. Questions > Answers Questions: I love that we can get free patterns to fold, but So confused about how sizes and print them off my computer. Can you help me? Answer: Generally, patterns are presented to sizes that were designed. Reactivate them can create problems, because its strip size will have to change. Having said that, can you can save each pattern, open it in the graphics editing software, and size to suit your needs, then print from there. Some people also do this in Word. Where's Else? Kari Poulsen from Ohio on September 11, 2017: Wow, Where'd you learn all these things? What a perfect way to recycle! :) Home Sweet Home on February 01, 2015: Wow, beautiful folding, thanks for the ScentsWithBling links on August 17, 2013: What a wonderful ship! I'm going to have to try this anonymous on March 23, 2012: That looks very nice. I have to prove it :) Peggy Hazelwood from the southwest desert, United States on February 28, 2012: I love the look of you folding. I need to try!
