The recommended nominal flow power is usually 3 to 4 times the volume of water in the aquarium per hour. Incoming water flow is directed to the bottom of the container and forced through filter baskets. For example, CF-600 has a nominal vessel volume of 4.8 liters, but the actual filter material volume is 2.8 liters. External filter and the appropriate flow power depends on the <sup>3</sup> situation. The flow channel is secured with rubber seals. The filter set is supplied with a selection <sup>3</sup> alternate spray bar parts <sup>3</sup> different applications. A full line of spare parts is available for Atman Aquarium Filters. note! The capacity of the filter material given in the technical details is the actual amount of filter material that can be installed in the baskets, not the nominal volume of the canister. These are well-made aquarium filters with powerful motors, <sup>3</sup> construction <sup>3</sup> and reliable operation<sup>3</sup> The filter material is placed in extra-useful baskets compatible with all types of materials. Suitable for both freshwater and marine aquariums (zero-impeller axis). Atman CF-Filters is equipped with a starter pump and touches on both hoses.
